Highway Worker Killed, Two Hurt In Traffic Mishaps

SIX-YEAR-OLD SCHOOL GIRL HIT BY AUTO

Savannah Man Dies Beneath Five-Ton Tar Truck Near Hayesville.

Highway accidents took one life yesterday afternoon and injured two persons, one, a six-year-old Newman school girl, seriously.

Dead is Creston L. Lindsay, 56, of Savannah.

Injured were Thor A. Harwood, 42, of Savannah, and Ida Maureen Wade, 6, Mansfield D. R. 1.

Lindsay, a state highway worker was killed outright when he was pinned beneath a five-ton tar-distributing truck that overturned two miles southwest of Hayesville around 1:58 p. m.

Driver Also Hurt.

Harwood, a fellow worker and driver of the highway truck, was reported in "good" condition at Ashland Samaritan hospital today after receiving a fractured right collar bone and tar burns.

Ida Wade was reported in "poor" condition at General hospital. She suffered from a fractured left leg and possible skull fracture.

State highway officers said the little girl was struck when she ran from behind a moving school bus into the path of a car, driven by Kenneth Crow, 30, rear 312 Sturges avenue, at 3:15 p. m. on North Main street road, three miles north of the city on State Route 13.

Tried to Avoid Child.

Officers said that no violation was involved in the mishap. They said the child had alighted from the bus and was crossing the road from her family mail box when she ran in front of the car. Crow told patrolmen he saw the child and tried to avoid hitting her.

The highway truck accident, officers said, was apparently due to loss of control of the vehicle as Harwood was coming down grade.

Mr. Lindsay's body was removed to the Denbow-Bear funeral home in Ashland. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday at the Savannah residence in charge of Rev. E. K. Barss of the Methodist church. Burial will be in Savannah cemetery.

Mr. Lindsay was born Aug. 8, 1890 in Greenwich. He leaves his wife, Hannah E.; five daughters, Mrs. Irene Shanefelter of Ashland, Mrs. Pauline Jarvis of Hayesville, Mrs. Bette Baughman of Wooster, Mrs. Mary Green of Wellington and Janice at home; three sons, Robert and Wade of Savannah and Roger, with the occupation forces in Germany; and his mother, Mrs. Ida M. Lindsay; a sister, Mrs. Cecelia Heitsche, both of New London and by a brother, Leon Lindsay of Greenwich and 10 grandchildren.

Union Disturbance Leads to Emergency In Hollywood.

HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—A state of emergency, proclaimed by the sheriff, existed in Los Angeles county today as the movies' latest labor dispute entered its third day.

Sheriff Eugene Biscailuz called in about 150 additional special deputies to police the gates of the major film studios, which are being picketed by the conference of studio unions in their jurisdictional dispute with the rival International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes. Both are AFL groups.

The dispute, recurrence of one which led to a 34-week strike last year, arose from refusal of CSU workmen to handle sets which they claim had been built by IATSE members.

NEW YORK—(INS)—That 7,607-ton freighter Rutgers Victory was reported proceeding to New York today in a calm sea with a gaping hole in its side.

Stadium's Seat Plan Explained

By FRED THARP
News-Journal Sports Editor

Mansfield high school officials, taking cognizance of criticism of seating arrangements provided for Senior high students at football games, offered an explanation today.

"Gripes" were particularly noticeable last night among the nearly 7,000 fans who saw the Mansfield Tygers trounce Sandusky 55 to 2. Scores of high school youngsters and a greater number of junior high and grade school pupils watched the game from behind the south goal line.

Many adults, recalling their school days when members of the student body had choice seats and older spectators took what was left, asserted a belief that youngsters were "given a raw deal."

* * *

Pupils OKed It.

Not so, was the consensus of high school officials. The youngsters themselves agreed to the arrangement in order that they might do their part to make possible a bigger and better stadium in years to come. Such a stadium, designed to seat 6,000, is under construction. When additional funds are available, the seating capacity will be doubled.

The Student Council, undergraduate governing body at Senior high school, they explained, voted last spring to give up the 50-yard line seats and take other seats so as to make possible an increase in the revenue at the 1946 home football contests.

One of the principal "beefs" on the part of the pupils has been the increase in price of student activity books from 10 to 20 cents. The books permit their holders to attend all football and basketball games, concerts, and school plays, pays their subscriptions to student publications and charges for other school activities.

Many football-minded students thought that general admission seats should have been raised in proportion to the student books.

920 Seats for Pupils.

Four sections—A. B. C. and D—are reserved for students. Each section has 230 seats, making a total of 920 seats. Senior high school enrollment is 1,244. Deducting members of the football squad and band and students who do not care to witness football

Governor Says Football Pool Lures 'Sucker' Money.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Gov. Frank J. Lausche today cautioned Ohioans against the "sucker lure" of commercial football pools and instructed the liquor department to act against drinking establishments handling gridiron lottery cards.

"While we are constantly advocating that people should guard their war savings," the governor said in a statement, "new rackets intermittently appear in which 'suckers' are exploited by racketeers.

"The latest one is a scheme that has appeared in different towns where a wholesale scheme of combination betting on football games is being promoted.

PARENTS RAP SCHOOL SITE

Newman Area Mothers Present Petition to School Board.

First formal move against the Central avenue site for the new Newman school was made today. A petition containing 528 names and a request for school board members to meet with parents was presented to the board.

The petition against the new site was drawn up Wednesday and circulated in the district. It was presented to John H. Eisaman, clerk-treasurer of the board, by a committee of six Newman school mothers.

Mrs. Carl Weber, spokesman for the mothers, said that Eisaman was unable to set a date for the meeting, insisted upon by the petition signers, due to the absence of two school board members from the city. Mrs. Weber said that Eisaman "promised" to refer the matter to Supt. W. L. Miller, Monday and that the committee would be notified of the meeting date.

Also invited to the meeting was Councilman Fred Miller of the fifth ward.

SLEEP, DIE

HAMMOND, Ind. —(U.P.)—Three high school boys who went to sleep on the tracks of the Nickel Plate railroad after attending a friend's birthday party were killed early today by a passing train.

A fourth, Gene Blair, 15, Hammand, escaped by rolling off the right of way into a ditch, and watched the train crush his schoolmates. "It was awful," he said. "I saw the train pass right over them."

The dead were Melvin Altgilbers, Gary, Ind., and Joseph Walker, 15, and Charles Shick, 16, both of Hammond. Altgilbers was a senior at Hammand Technical high school, and the other three were sophomores.

Early Morning Blaze Damages Moose Bar

Fire of undetermined origin early today destroyed the bar in the Fiesta room of the Moose lodge at 114 North Walnut street. Damage was estimated at several thousand dollars.

The fire was discovered at 5:36 a. m by a patrolman on his beat.

Only the fireproof construction of the building saved it from heavier damage, said Lloyd Hughes, governor of the lodge.

The fact that burglar proof doors leading from the Fiesta room in the basement were closed prevented spread of the flames. Smoke and heat heavily damaged plaster in the Fiesta room and smoke damaged the walls of several upstairs rooms.

Labels were burned off of scores of bottles of wine and liquor and many of the unbroken bottles still were warm at mid-forenoon as lodge members and their families pitched in to clean the building.

The electric clock in the Fiesta room was stopped at 2:30 a. m. indicating that the fire had progressed sufficiently at that hour to burn the cord leading to it.

The large auditorium room, decorated several months ago at a cost of $650, suffered only minor damage from smoke.

Fire in grass at 390 Overlook road yesterday destroyed several bundles of roofing shingles, several fruit trees and threatened a pile of lumber where a new residence is being constructed at 447 Shepard road.

A false alarm run was made by firemen to First and South Mulberry street at 7:30 p. m. last night.

TIME'S SHORT

Motorists Form Long Lines to Buy Permits.

Time was running out today for motorists who have neglected to buy their driver's and chauffeur's licenses for 1947. But the delinquents formed a long line by noon.

The Automobile Club reported at that time that 14,728 licenses had been issued in Mansfield and Richland county. That is 2,478 more than the final total last year, said Jack Berger, secretary of the club.

The line of several hundred at noon extended from the club rooms, to the street. Berger expected that the rush would continue until 6 p. m. today and would be resumed Monday, the last day for buying licenses.

The Auto Club office also will be opened Monday until 6 p. m.

VET HOUSING GIVEN BOOST BY OPINION

Ground to Be Broken Monday for 50-Unit Project Within City.

The months-long program to provide more housing for veterans of Mansfield and Richland county moved into higher gear today.

1—A representative of Lloyds Builders, Inc., Chicago contractors who are to bring to Mansfield 50 emergency housing units, announced ground would be broken Monday on the two sites for the units.

2—County commissioners, who are holding $64,149 in state aid funds for the housing emergency, were told by Assistant County Prosecutor Claude F. Ewing that they are legally empowered to delegate to the Mansfield Metropolitan Housing Authority the duties of managing the county's project.

* * *

Many Meetings.

The commissioners have met with the MMHA and other city officials several times to consider whether the county should let the Mansfield group administer its housing program.

Although the commissioners haven't definitely decided to turn their program over to the MMHA, Ewing's opinion probably will result in such action because the MMHA is already a going concern and its handling of the program would avoid inevitable delays that would result if the county should start from scratch.

Commissioners also have pointed out that Mansfield is probably the only community in the county with a housing shortage severe enough to demand immediate attention.

* * *

Engineers Visit.

Announcement by Charles E. Correa, project general superintendent, and George W. Greher, another superintendent, of the Lloyds firm, that ground would be broken in the new city project came after their visit here yesterday. They inspected the two sites with Mayor Roy W. Vaughn and Raymond Friday, project manager and secretary of the MMHA.

By night-fall the Charles Mill lake veterans' village should boast a population of four families.

Moving in today were Mr. and Mrs Paul Leversparger and one child, 1.

With 71 apartments still to be occupied, James L. Zimmerman, housing committee chairman of McVey post, American Legion, said a two-unit building would be opened next.

He said lack of shower cabinets had delayed opening of these units and was a major cause for the delay in opening 15 others. He said, however, that it was hoped that 17 apartments will be ready within two weeks.

Fifty other temporary apartments are to be erected on two sites within the city.

And No Frown for Sour Notes

CHICAGO —(INS)— A drummer, who lost his job in an orchestra at Salt Lake City because the band leader had invented a mechanical drum beater, got his revenge today.

The drummer, Al Carter, announced he had perfected a mechanical baton waver that would make orchestra leaders superfluous.

Carter explained that his mechanical band leader consists of a baton which waves rhythmically on a five-foot pole and is operated electrically. Still angered over losing his job to a robot drummer, Carter claims that his device can do everything a band leader can—except fire the drummer.

WORLD ABLE TO HARNESS ATOM, SAY SCIENTISTS

'Technologically Feasible,' States Unanimous Report of U. N. Group.

LAKE SUCCESS, N Y.—(AP)—Scientists of the United Nations atomic energy commission declared today that effective control of atomic energy, which the world is seeking to harness for peace, is possible on the basis of available scientific facts.

The finding was made public when the United Nations released a 22-page report adopted unanimously Thursday by the scientists who make up the commission's scientific and technical committee. The report will be submitted to the commission's committee No. 2 (political) at a meeting here next Wednesday (10:30 a. m. EST).

"With regard to the question posed by Committee 2, 'whether effective control of atomic energy is possible,' we do not find any basis in the available scientific facts for supposing that effective control is not technologically feasible," the report said.

Having thus discharged the task assigned by the political group, the scientists added:

"Whether or not it is politically feasible is not discussed or implied in this report, nor is there any recommendation of the particular system or systems by which effective control can be achieved."

Baruch Pleased.

The report was the first international finding on atomic energy to be approved unanimously and was hailed by Bernard M. Baruch, United States member of the commission, as a "forward motion" in the commission's deliberations.

Husband Writes 1 Letter Too Many

CHICAGO — (INS) — August Knopf, 28, who had written his wife, Lorraine, 26, 2,000 letters while he was in the army, learned today that he had written one too many.

The one-too-many letter was intercepted by Mrs. Knopf, and she showed it to Judge Edwin A. Robson in her suit for separate maintenance. The letter, she said, was written to a girl in Denver, saying Knopf would be there in a week. Judge Robson thought otherwise and ordered Knopf to jail unless he posts a $1,000 bond to guarantee his presence in Chicago.

TURKEY GETS BLUNT NOTES FROM RUSSIA

BULLETIN

ISTANBUL, Turkey —(U.P.)— Responsible Turkish quarters said today that the government of Turkey has taken "extraordinary military measures and is ready for any eventuality" as a result of the Soviet note urging joint defense of the Dardanelles.

LONDON — (INS) — The Soviet government went on record today with an outright demand for joint control with Turkey of the strategic Dardanelles, eliminating all nations not adjoining the Black sea from military use of the straits.

A lengthy communique from the Kremlin broadcast by the Moscow radio furnished the full text of notes exchanged between Russia and Turkey on the subject.

The Soviets took the view that Russian fortification of the northern shores of the straits is essential to "consolidation of universal peace" and said that solution of this problem is of "vital interest to the U. S. S. R."

* * *

British Object.

A spokesman for the British foreign office said there was nothing in the Soviet demand that could alter Britain's position that the future of the Dardanelles must be decided by all nations concerned and not by bi-lateral negotiations such as Moscow is endeavoring to effect.

The Turkish embassy said that Turkey would not "budge an inch" from its stand rejecting joint Russo-Turkish control of the straits.

Britain's view—as expressed to Moscow in an unanswered formal note a month ago—is that the Potsdam agreement, upon which Russia now bases her demand, merely provided for future international discussion of the Dardanelles and not for individual and immediate negotiations between the Soviet Union and Turkey.

The Soviet communique, however, said:

"The Soviet government deems it necessary that defense of the straits shall be effected by joint forces of Turkey and the U.S.S.R."

* * *

Wants Northern Side.

The demand was contained in a Russian foreign office communique which renewed demands that the Soviets be permitted to fortify and maintain bases on the northern side of the straits.

This theoretically leaves the Turks with defense of the southern sections under a sort of joint Soviet-Turkish control.

The Russians somewhat boldly declared that should Turkey refuse to accept the proposals of Moscow and take military measures in the straits jointly with some non-Black sea powers this course would run directly counter to the interests and security of Black sea powers.

Moscow pointed out that Turkey should not forget that the Soviet Black sea coast stretches for a distance of more than 1,300 miles.

At this point the communique said:

"Therefore the need for ensuring security with the Soviet Union directly participating in defense of the straits follows the vital interests of the U.S.S.R."

Says Meal Prices Won't Be Changed

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Executive Vice President Robert R. Williams of the Ohio State Restaurant association said today that the OPA's reversal to permit increases in restaurant ceiling prices on meat dishes would have little effect on Ohio restaurant prices.

He pointed out that most Ohio restaurants increased meat dish prices as the costs of meat supplies increased.

Labor Will Be Next Shortage, Warns Small, Proposing Longer Work Week

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Industry was warned today it faces a shortage of labor by the end of the year.

"A longer work week, at overtime pay, will be necessary if we are to get a substantial increase in overall production, said John D. Small, civilian production administrator.

Small told a news conference the labor pool has been exhausted. There will soon be a shortage of labor "clear across the board," he added.

Greater productivity per man is the answer, he asserted. That means more output per hour, and more hours worked per week. Generally, he said, productivity is already above pre-war levels.

In a monthly production report, Small said August output of most consumer durables—trucks, tires, washing machines, radios, stoves, vacuum cleaners—had passed the pre-war records.

This was not true of cars, refrigerators, or sewing machines. But the car makers built 241,000 vehicles in August, Small reported, and expect to put out 1,000,000 in the next three months.

By the end of the year, he predicted, many of the "relatively few" remaining shortages will vanish. On the great mass of goods, shortages are already a thing of the past.

The production chief reported that overall industrial output climbed sharply in August to a new postwar peak. Output of basic materials continued at near-capacity levels.

Building materials showed "spectacular" gains. Construction passed the $1,000,000,000 per month mark. For the first time since October, 1941, residential building exceeded commercial and industrial.

YESTERDAY AND TODAY
. . . IN THE LIVES OF FAMOUS FOLK

MAUDE ADAMS, unforgettable as "Peter Pan" and other heroines in Sir James Barrie's plays, charmed two generations of American theater-goers until she retired from the stage in 1918 after suffering a nervous breakdown. Since that time Miss Adams has come into public attention upon few occasions.

There was 1931-32 when she went on a 26-week tour with Otis Skinner, in "Merchant of Venice," and a few years later another tour in "Twelfth Night."

There were the years she worked in electrical research laboratories, experimenting in color movies and developing new stage and movie lighting techniques. There was 1934 when she turned to radio plays; 1937 when she spent several months as professor of drama at Stephens college in Columbia, Mo., and the following year when she went to Hollywood for screen tests. But for the most part Miss Adams has remained in seclusion at her Long Island estate.

One of the wealthiest women on the stage when she retired, Maude Adams was born in Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 11, 1872, daughter of a business man and an actress. She spoke her first part at the age of five in a San Francisco theater, but abandoned the theater from 6 to 16 to attend school.

Her debut on the New York stage came in 1888, with her first appearance as a star coming 10 years later in Washington, D. C., in Barrie's "The Little Minister." Miss Adams' greatest success, "Peter Pan," opened in 1905 and ran for two seasons in New York City.

SINGLETON kings and unguarded or once-guarded queens are far from valueless to a No Trump declarer. Even if their suit is selected for the opening lead, such cards often prove to be winners. That is because the best lead against a No Trump game is frequently a smaller card away from the top honors.

South, a highly imaginative player, felt that his pair had a fair score in a big duplicate, with a chance to win if the last few hands produced some clear tops.

Deciding to give his luck a chance — to boost him up or toss him down—he selected 1-Spade as his opening in place of the 1-Club others would surely bid, and later took a chance on having hearts stopped.

West led the heart 3, the 10 forcing the J. After study, showing eight tricks available, South scored the diamond A, then led the heart Q.

South realized from the opening lead that East held two cards from the 4, 5 and 6, but that the heart Q play now would make it seem to West as if South had them. West fell. He decided South was trying to make the heart 9 an entry to dummy to run diamonds—which could be prevented by letting the Q win and holding the A-K to kill off the 5 and 4.

After West put the 6 on that trick, South ran his clubs for game, the only one made by anybody in the contest.

COUSIN EGRET EXPLAINS

Who travels much is sure to find
He has with treasure stored his mind. —Cousin Egret.

"Ah suppose yo' will go back there," said Cousin Egret gravely.

Cousin Egret, the big white Heron whom Peter Rabbit had discovered on the shore of the Big River, had explained that he happened to be there because he was vacationing just as most of the feathered folks of Peter's acquaintance go vacationing in the Sunny South during winter months.

"I suppose you'll go back to the Sunny South," Peter ventured.

Cousin Egret looked down his long bill at Peter. "Brer Rabbit," said he, "Ah suppose yo' live in a briar-patch somewhere in these parts."

"I certainly do. I live in the dear Old Briar-patch over near the Old Pasture," replied Peter.

"Ah suppose yo' will go back there," said Cousin Egret gravely.

"Of course I'll go back there. That's my home. It is the best place in all the Great World," cried Peter.

"Mah home is in the Sunny South. Ah was born there. Ah have lived there all mah life. Yo' are mistaken about the best place in all the Great World, Brer Rabbit. Ah should know for Ah have seen mo' of the Great World than yo' have. The best place is the Sunny South. Of course Ah'm going back there," said Cousin Egret.

"Then why did you leave it to come up here?" demanded Peter, and thought it a smart question.

"Why did yo' leave your dear Old Briar-patch?" asked Cousin Egret. The way in which he looked down his long bill at Peter made it seem a pointed question.

"Oh just to look around. I like to know what is going on outside the dear Old Briar-patch," replied Peter somewhat lamely."

Cousin Egret nodded. "Just so," he agreed. "Who never leaves home knows little, but weuns who travel learn much. Ah know a lot about the Great World that Ah don't know when Ah left home, and Ah'll know a lot mo' when Ah get back there."

"If you get back there," said Peter.

Cousin Egret looked at him sharply, even a bit suspiciously. "What do yo' mean by that, Brer Rabbit?" he demanded.

"Nothing in particular," Peter hastened to say. "I was just thinking that there must be many dangers on such a long journey."

"Ah reckon there are fo' those who are careless or don' know how to look out fo' themselves. Ah do know how to look out fo' mahself and Ah aims not to be careless," replied the white Heron.

"Don't you love it up here?" asked Peter.

"No," replied Cousin Egret flatly.

"Then what have you come up here for?" asked Peter testily.

"To look around. To see what it is like. To meet the people who live here all the time. To try to find out why some of mah cousins, Longlegs the Great Blue Heron, Quawk the Night Heron and the still smaller one called Little Green Heron, come up here to make their homes when they could live down where weuns live," replied Cousin Egret.

"Have you found out?" Peter promptly wanted to know.

Cousin Egret shook his head. "No, Brer Rabbit," said he. "Ah reckon they just haven't got real sense. If they never had seen the Sunny South Ah might understand it. But they have seen it. They come back there every winter, are warm, live well and then fo' no reason at all that Ah can see they turn around and come way back up here to build their homes. No, sur, Ah reckon they got no sense at all."

"I suppose you raised a family down there," said Peter.

"Of course Mrs. Egret and Ah done raise a fam'ly. Weuns had a nest and eggs befo' some of our foolish cousins were well started on their way back up here. That is how Ah happens to be up here now. Fam'ly cares being over some of us decided to take a vacation like Ah said. Ah reckon weuns will be going back right soon now. Ah don't know what any one wants to live up here fo," Cousin Egret spoke as if he really meant it. I suspect he did.

The next story: "Peter Makes a Mistake."

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, September 29.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds auguary of a degree of benefic and gratifying activity, with a quick change, journey or new alliance, but its final issue and ultimate benefits and gain depend not only upon reasonably good judgment but the exercise of amiable, friendly and considerate conduct.

A promising lunar change assists to this happy culmination, and may be of value in melting away opposition or obstacle.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of reasonable progress, with growth, change and possible change of environs, which may have long-term results. Much depends on the manner in which such opportunities are handled, with astute judgment born of experience as well as some original and clever thinking.

A friendly and cooperative spirit, with understanding and consideration, should do much to ward off antagonism or obstruction.

A child born on this day may be endowed with certain outstanding or novel talents or skills, and should make progress by meeting opposition and impediment by friendly cooperation.

For Monday, September 30.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast holds concrete promise of a happy, lucrative and longsustained industry and devotion to duty, responsibility and obligations, reaching a climax of fulfilled ambitions and cherished goals. Under the urge of organized talents and capabilities there is every indication of assistance and token of preferment from those in influential positions.

Seek these, reach for high objectives and romance, and pleasant adventure may crown all efforts.

Those whose birthday it is are in line for a sound, progressive and felicitious year, due to sound and trained skills and supported by application, hard work and a co-ordinated spirit of obligation, duty and responsibility, which are due to attract the cordial support and friendly appreciation of those in influential places.

Work to such far-reaching goals, with freedom from fear, romance, and adventure at the end of the road.

Try and Stop Me

Greenstone had been in Miami about a week when he felt the urge to do a little gambling. His friend explained that reformers had clamped the lid down tight on Dade county, but that one back room was running surreptitiously in an obscure night club.

Just before they entered the friend warned, "You realize, of course, that this place is crooked. The wheel is fixed, and I think the dice are loaded." "Not so loud," pleaded Greenstone. "They might hear us and not let us in."

Just about the dreariest jokes in the world are the inevitable accounts of drunken husbands trying to sneak into bed without arousing their terrible-tempered wives. One of the better ones, however, concerns the wily party who paused enroute in the kitchen and laboriously tied all the pots, pans, and trays he could find to a rope. He then proceeded upstairs, dragging the rope behind him, and muttering happily, "She'll never hear me in all this racket."

DRIVER FREED AFTER HEARING

Testimony of 15 Witnesses Heard By Court.

Judge H. H. Schettler yesterday in municipal court dismissed a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol against Samuel D. Hollingsworth, 47, of 415 Scholl road.

The hearing lasted nearly five hours with 15 witnesses being heard.

Testimony revealed that Hollingsworth was involved in an accident on Myers road Wednesday night in which a tractor, driven by C. M. Koogle, of Pavonia, was upset.

Hollingsworth and Koogle suffered minor injuries. A passenger in Hollingsworth's car, Nick Radovich, 25 Crestline avenue, received a deep head cut.

Judge Schettler said he considered the evidence insufficient to prove "beyond a reasonable doubt" that Hollingsworth was guilty of the charge.

City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner prosecuted the case for the state; John Catlett was defense attorney.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1946

Drive carefully tomorrow—and better plan to make the old car last through the winter.

Whale steak is now being extolled as "tasty and nutritious"—all right, bring on the whale.

One million Chicago housewives are to be polled on what they think about OPA and the meat shortage—but only a few of them are credited with having the type of vocabulary to express what they really think.

Mansfield's Suburban Area Expands

SPREAD of Mansfield toward Ashland, as touched upon in yesterday's News-Journal, is one of those modern trends that may well be taken into account in the long-range planning that all progressive communities are expected to do.

Not only is there a suburban spread of Mansfield toward Ashland, but also toward Shelby, Crestline, Lexington, Bellville, Mifflin and other nearby cities, towns and villages.

Motorized transportation was largely responsible for the pre-war development of suburban areas around Mansfield as an escape from an earlier inclination to build closely on narrow streets in order to keep within walking distance of "downtown."

It is noteworthy that much desirably located "farmland" of twenty years ago has now been transformed into attractive residential sections, and there would quickly be more of this if materials and labor permitted home-building to proceed to the extent of willingness and need.

For the present, it appears desirable that Mansfield's growth be no more rapid than available housing facilities can care for, but looking further ahead—with apparently justified optimism—there is reason to believe that further suburban development will exceed any heretofore experienced hereabouts—all of which will be to the betterment of Mansfield.

Time for Halloween Planning

WHILE Halloween is still a month ahead, it is none too soon to be giving thought to plans for sensible observance of that merry-making occasion. Intention to carry through another of the traditional "Help Hunt Halloween" parties, originated by the late Fred Hunt 38 years ago, has already been announced, and it may be hoped that this will continue to hold the community-wide interest that it gained in the past.

Another excellent idea was hit upon last year—that of holding the annual Simpson-Appleseed Junior high school football game on Halloween night, which this year will be Thursday, Oct. 31.

It is noteworthy that at last year's game several thousand young people were attracted to the stadium, thus evidencing their appreciation of an evening's enjoyable entertainment.

The suggestion was offered at that time that the Simpson-Appleseed game—which is an outstanding attraction in Junior high school circles—be made an annual Halloween event, and this suggestion was received with favor by many people—so why not carry the idea through again this year?

Justification for community co-operation in planning Halloween entertainment is seen in the fact that much progress has already been made from the earlier rampage of rowdyism and vandalism that marked Halloween week, and that it has been found well worthwhile to devise means of directing youthful enthusiasm along constructive lines.

Schoolboy Becomes 'Family Man'

NOT FROM the "Tobacco Road" country, but from erudite Detroit, comes the story of a 15-year-old schoolboy marrying a 30-year-old widow—mother of two children aged 10 and 9.

It appears that the wedding took place in Missouri last month, and the present commotion results from a controversy over whether the young husband should be required to continue in school until he is 16, or be permitted to take his place in the community as "a family man," as he calls himself.

The whole thing is very confusing, as viewed from quite generally accepted standards of propriety, and there may be some who feel that a 30-year-old woman who marries a 15-year-old boy might properly be regarded as "contributing to the delinquency of a minor." But she comments that it's "a private affair," so that's that.

Increase In Heart Ailments Noted

HEART DISEASES are afflicting four million Americans and the number is growing. Disturbing as this sounds, it indicates health progress in another way. It is because of the lengthening life span that heart ailments, which ordinarily come in later years, have increased.

This kind of illness is comparatively new in medical history. So far only 17 cents is spent on research for each heart death, while $6.12 is devoted to study for every death caused by an infectious disease.

Doctors emphasize the need for knowledge and intelligent care in heart weakness. They give cheerful assurance that even a damaged heart will permit a useful and reasonably long life, provided the person afflicted takes proper care of himself.

This Will Interest Tired Men

EMILY POST says it's all right—that the tired businessman doesn't have to give up his bus seat to any energetic woman who happens to be standing around.

A woman who protested that chivalry was utterly gone brought the question to a head recently. The etiquette expert came right back with her judgment—"Ever since woman has taken her place in the business world, it has been expected of her not to ask special favors." Mrs. Post held that a woman who is elderly, or one carrying a baby or heavy packages, should be given consideration, but beyond such obvious reasons for sitting, she gave the worn-out male the benefit of the doubt.

Of course the men calmly decided all this for themselves long ago, but they will appreciate having an authority to quote.

Barbara Hutton says she's "always wanted to live like an Arab," so she has bought a $75,000 palace in Morocco—which gives an entirely different idea of how an Arab lives.

Any claim that Truman was responsible for the collapse of Niagara Falls is being attributed entirely to partisan politics.

Russia To Speed Steel Production As Phase of Current '5-Year Plan'

By RAYMOND MOLEY

ONE reaction to the Stalin interview suggests that his words belie the actions of his government. Another and more useful suggestion is that his words decrying war are perfectly consistent with Russian facts.

Russia can hardly want war when it is not now, nor likely to be for a long time, in good condition to have war.

Only a crazy government rushes unprepared into war, and the Soviet people are realists.

Even Hitler delayed his provocations until he had the iron, steel and munitions production of Austria and Czechoslovakia. Steel is the great index to economic power.

The present 1946-50 Soviet five-year plan aims at bringing Russian capacity to 19.5 million tons of pig iron and 25.4 million tons of steel a year. To do this, the production of coal is to be raised to 250 million tons a year and that of coke to 30 million tons a year.

The Russian goal amounts to less than half the 1939 production of the United States. It is much less than one-third of our wartime production. And American productive capacity is now running at a very high rate and will be standing by for a number of years to come. Moreover, we are and shall continue to improve our methods and increase our productivity.

Looking beyohd the present five-year plan to 1960, the Soviet people aim at 50 million tons of pig iron and 60 million tons of steel annually. They would thus, in 1960, reach two-thirds of our 1944 production.

Assuming an increase in population of three million a year, the production per person in Russia will be only half that of the United States in 1940. It is true that the Soviet planners will use to the full whatever German help can be gained in the Russian zone and from prisoners still held in Russia.

Russia's labor shortage explains in large part the delay in peacemaking caused by Soviet statesmen in Paris and elsewhere.

As long as claims and counterclaims can be debated, the Russians will exploit their temporary possession of German resources.

The business-minded Swiss know a lot about what is going on, even behind iron curtains. An expert of that country, writing in the Neue Zuricher Zeitung, expresses doubt about the ability of Russia to reach her proposed goals. He points out that Russia does not have the necessary initial equipment for such an enormous gain, that there is not enough skilled labor now and that it will not exist even after the experiment is made.

Essential to the success of the Russian plan will be foreign credit and technical aid.

Those who make superficial comparisons between Russia now and Nazi Germany before the war overlook a salient fact. The Nazis directed their energies and resources specifically toward a European war from the moment they assumed power. The Nuermberg trial proved that.

No such warlike preparation is present in Russia now. The Soviet government says that production in the five-year plan is to be used in repairing the factories and plants destroyed or damaged during the war. It figures that this rehabilitation program applies to 3,200 industrial enterprises and 98,000 collective farms.

The projected Russian national income for 1950 will permit an increase of 48 per cent in average earnings of workers over 1940.

This implies a growth of consumer goods manufacture and is in line with a primary aim of the five-year plan — to raise the standard of living.

After 1950, the balance may swing again to heavy industry. But before it does, we can express the hope that world stability may be attained.

Listen World!

Don't You Dare Call Elsie "Tovarich"!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I HAVE lately received an increasing number of letters which fondly address me as "Tovarich" or Comrade and then proceed to expound Communistic doctrines under a thin smear of democracy.

Formerly such letters were just a common nuisance. Lately they have become an acute blight and I propose to do something about it right here and now. Which can be expressed in four words—

DON'T CALL ME "TOVARICH!"

DON'T CUDDLE UP TO ME UNDER THE DELUSION THAT I AM ANYBODY'S COMRADE.

I am 100% American and that's good enough for me and will be until the day I die. And anyone who tries to hang a foreign communistic label on me is going to get his teeth kicked in.

That is an unladylike statement and I mean it to be so. I have no use for anybody who makes his living in this country and theoretically subscribes to its great principles and then goes snooping around trying to indoctrinate us with a lot of foreign flimflam.

Communism may be good for the Russians. All right, let the Russians have it. It may be exactly the right program for people who were, for the most part, slaves in the last century. But I was not a slave in the last century.

I have many centuries of free men and women behind me. And I absolutely refuse to be corralled with a lot of mavericks who are just beginning to learn how to use soap.

If any Russian reader decides to be insulted by these remarks he can be insulted and see how much I care.

There is only one thing I despise more than the communistic propagandist and that is the "parlor pink" American who goes around babbling about the Russian Utopia. If it were possible, such an idiot should be soundly booted into Siberia and forced to stay there. Then we'd see how long he stayed pink.

The American people are the most prosperous and comfortable people on the face of the earth. They are probably too prosperous and comfortable for their own good.

But they will get that larruped out of them in a few more centuries and decide to grow up. In the meantime, as one of them, I subscribe heartily to private enterprise which has brought us to our present state of progress. I believe in private enterprise because it is the natural way of life. Even a turnip seed has to meet competition and plenty of it. Everything that lives, be it vegetable or animal, exhibits private enterprise during its growth.

This does not mean that I admire the pigginess, the selfishness and stupidity of our top bracket boys. They carry the thing too far. But I do admire the private enterprise that lifted a Lincoln from a log cabin to the White House . . . that determined Carnegie to make America book conscious . . . that inspired a Rockefeller to expand the horizons of science.

And I admire the private enterprise that made every G.I. in the late war feel big enough to lick the whole of Germany and Japan combined.

That is the stuff that keeps the stars wheeling in their orbits. That's the spark God breathed into a lump of clay. That's the thing that makes a man an individual—not the pitiful pawn of some despot in Moscow.

So right here and now you can stop calling me Tovarich. Or I'll really get mad.

Nation Protests Meatless Menus, Truman Says There's No 'Famine'

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

MEAT virtually disappeared from home plates throughout the country and a terrific howl went up from 140,000,000 Americans facing an artificial famine in a land of plenty. Hotels, restaurants and hospitals were caught too and meatless meals became the order of the day. In Boston, the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary and several general hospitals began serving horse meat to patients. In the New York metropolitan area, more than 1,000 delicatessens shut down until, their association said, "proper government agencies and packers correct the situation."

In Chicago, the heart of the nation's meat industry, more than 90 per cent of all meat counters were closed and more than 15,000 CIO and AFL packinghouse workers were laid off.

Detroiters staggered through their third practically meatless week, save for hoarded cold cuts and scarce canned beef and pork products. Thousands of Motor City residents paid $1.30 round-trip tolls to cross the Ambassador Bridge to Windsor, Ont., where Canadian steaks and roasts were sold at prices below ceiling prices in this country.

Sunshine But Little Meat.

San Francisco reported meat supplies 35 per cent of normal with most retail meat markets operating 40 per cent of the time.

The Meat Dealers Association of Southern California said more than half the 4,500 butcher shops in the Los Angeles territory shut down and the remainder operating at 20 per cent of normal volume.

In New York City and several other eastern centers with large Jewish populations, kosher markets reported live poultry and fish plentiful for Rosh Hashanah, start of the Jewish New Year holidays.

All-Time Low.

In Washington, the department of agriculture surveyed the national scene and observed that "receipts of red meat are again at an all-time low." One eastern agricultural bureau said there was some lamb, veal and mutton with "10 customers for each carcass in the wholesale market districts."

In Washington, Rep. Dewey Short (R-Mo.) asserted that the Office of Price Administration "needed an undertaker not a doctor." He said that OPA, with the possible exception of rent controls, should be abolished as quickly as congress can do it and that OPA should never have been revived after it was dead.

Yesterday President Truman declared himself against removal of meat price control and contended that "dire predictions of a meat famine are without basis"—that this is merely a "shortage."

At Home

Big Business In Court.

Thirteen corporations and 16 officials who operate and serve the coast-to-coast stores of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., plan to appeal from a federal conviction of conspiring in restraint of trade and monopolizing food products in interstate commerce.

The A&P decision climaxed one of the longest and most complicated federal court trials on record. It began April 6, 1945, twice was recessed and was taken under advisement without a jury on April 6, 1946. The hearing consumed 22 weeks; there were about 30,000 pages of record, 200 witnesses and more than 5,000 exhibits.

Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley acknowledged the defense claim of "high character" in business policies, but said congress did not "condone good trusts and condemn bad ones; it forbade all."

Time Is Money.

One of the biggest postwar jobs is unloading mountainous stockpiles of war material which the nation's mass production lines spewed out in bewildering profusion. Time during the war meant the difference between victory and defeat. Time during reconversion means money saved for taxpayers and industry.

The War Assets Administration is the burgeoning federal agency charged with disposing of this war equipment which cost 30 billion dollars to build. To get rid of it by June, 1947, WAA plans to spend more than a half a billion dollars —$545,000,000.

WAA may not be able to spend money that fast, but it plans to shoot the works on the theory that the faster the sale, the bigger the net return to taxpayers.

WAA now has a working force of 50,000, plans to take on 20,000 more. It has far outstripped OPA with its 33,000 workers and is moving toward the magnitude of such old line departments as agriculture, the post office and the treasury. But by next June, WAA should be a dwarf again, its personnel pruned as rapidly as sales goals are met.

Peace Restored.

Appointment of W. Averill Harriman as secretary of commerce succeeding Henry A. Wallace clears the air over his nation's foreign policy and gives President Truman an official family, with one exception, entirely of his own choice. James V. Forrestal, secretary of the navy, appointed May 10, 1944, on the death of Frank Knox, is the only holdover from the cabinet of F.D.R.

The new appointments have led politicians to appraise the Truman cabinet as shifting right, politically, from what President Roosevelt used to call the "left of center" course of his administration. The Harriman appointment continues that trend.

Politically Harriman is, like Wallace, a transplanted Republican.

Despite his New Dealish background, Harriman differs from Wallace on many social and economic issues, as well as our policy toward Russia.

Abroad

The Premier Speaks.

From the Kremlin, Premier Josef Stalin made one of his periodic bows to western custom by answering a list of written questions submitted by a foreign correspondent—this time from The London Sunday Times. When Stalin makes one of his comparatively rare public pronouncements, the world as well as Soviet Russia listens.

The most important man in Russia reiterated his belief that the world is in no "real danger" of a new war. He spoke reassuringly of cooperation between the wartime Allies, declaring he did not believe Great Britain and the United States could create a capitalist encirclement of Russia "even if they so desired."

Asked if he believed early withdrawal of all American troops from China a vital step for future peace, Stalin answered simply: "Yes, I do."

Civil War In China.

Chinese Communists who earlier spurned U. S. Gen. George C. Marshall's peace negotiations offered to return to Nanking parleys provided the United States would guarantee to throw all her weight into efforts for an immediate armistice in China's undeclared but spreading civil war.

Counterbalancing these encouraging reports was another that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's two best armies, the 6th and 52nd, had been ordered to launch a full-scale assault on Antung, Communist-held port in Manchuria on the border of Soviet-occupied northern Korea.

The January 10 "cease-fire" agreement won by Gen. Marshall from both sides had broken down in many provinces of China proper but hitherto there had been serious attempts to observe the truce in Manchuria.

Quotes

Clinton P. Anderson, secretary of agriculture: "It is in the interest of the American public to see markets slowed up temporarily and meat hard to find."

Robert Patterson, secretary of war: "A foreign aggressor is not likely to start a war with the United States if he believes that the chances are he would be defeated. The fact is that in this day and age military power is the thing that counts."

Slaves In Shangri-La?

One of the most inaccessible spots in the world is western China, near the borders of Burma, Assam and Tibet—the setting of the mythical Shangri-la. Airmen who flew The Hump from India to China feared having to bail out over that wild, rugged country more than they ever feared the foe.

Some crews, forced down by engine failure on the fringes of that area, came back months later. Other crews, it was supposed, perished with their ships.

American military authorities are mulling over reports from the U. S. embassy in Nanking that there is reason to believe some long-missing B-29 fliers may still be living—as slaves of primitive Lolo tribesmen. China's government has not penetrated to Lolo land and Chinese dare not enter. The tribesmen, said to number in the millions, retain their own language and aboriginal customs. They are believed to be of Caucasian, rather than Chinese blood.

In Short

Revived: By the White House, diplomatic dinners and a normal full-dress social calendar after a blackout since 1939.

Charged: By the Federal General Accounting Office, that 19 wartime shipbuilding firms made profits of $356,000,000 on capital investments of $22,979,275, including one with an original investment of $600 which realized $2,080,000.

Farmer's Diary: "That House In Normandy."

ALONG a narrow road just at the eastern edge of a woods, a dwelling is in process of construction. The builder set it in a hundred feet from the highway on a little rise where a knot of young thrifty maples, oaks and elms grow.

The architecture is different from the average dwelling hereabouts. It seems roomy, but low and rambling, with a large stone chimney to the east. It still lacks doors and windows, but the roof of maroon and red composition shingles is neatly on. The sheathing and sub floors are made of used pine lumber.

One day when I went by a car stood at the edge of the excavated heap of earth. Two husky boys of 2 and 4 played about the trees.

A young woman was interestedly staking off the garden plot. The carpenter's hammer rang constantly inside the doorway.

I could feel an atmosphere of deep human interest. Every movement spoke of the future. This house and grounds possessed no history. The owners were building from the ground up . . . a splendid way to start.

As I walked up the rough oaken plank to the central opening, the noise of the hammer stopped and a tall wiry young man stood up full length with a long breath, and greeted me.

"We've been aworkin' six months already," he said. "It doesn't go fast, but I work in town 8 hours and out here every evening. In the shop I work for the other fellow; out here we work for ourselves. This is fun, though we're often so tired when we go home that we can't walk straight."

I remarked about this unique house plan.

"This house is built like one I saw in France . . . in Normandy. For three weeks after D-Day, I was in a foxhole there. Bullets zipped over every night and when morning came the red sun shone through a battle fog and lit the little panes of a French house that had been abandoned. The way that house looked when the light hit it was the one real glorious thing I looked upon in two years of service. It stuck with me.

"There was a garden there—and I was hungry. The fruits and vegetables, raw, were the tastiest food I ever ate. I thought to myself that my own young ones would enjoy a home like that, and my wife would look nice framed in the big wide door. And I want big windows so the light can shine, in and out, day or night . . . for after dark there's warmth in wide lighted windows and at sunrise the light will strike here, too. When it's all finished, come back and see it. Gosh, I'd like to take my wife to Normandy sometime, and see how nearly I've remembered that one."

Timely Editorial

Counting the Pennies.

A taxi pulled up to the curb. The meter showed 85 cents. Two women got out, one with a dollar bill in her hand. The other said, "Wait, I've got it here." She went down into three or four bags and puses, and finally came up with 70 cents. Her companion dug up another 15. They gave the 85 cents to the driver, and walked away.

"There you have it," said the cabbie, to the next passenger. "Three months ago they gave you a buck for anything over a 65-cent ride. Now they spend five minutes putting together the exact change."

People are reacquiring the habit of counting in small transactions. It can mean only one thing. Money doesn't go so easy because it no longer comes so easy.

What we need, and what we may be on the way to achieving, is a return to reason!—Detroit News.

Brooks, Cards Deadlocked In National Race

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—The National league pennant race, which had its unveiling last April, actually started today as the Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals found themselves deadlocked with two games to go.

To further enliven a boisterous tussle for a crack at the Boston Red Sox in the world series, the Dodgers and slump-fettered Cardinals also were opposed on their home fields in these final two games over the week-end by clubs fighting for third place money. They had better back up the ambulances just in case—

The Dodgers were to meet the fast-moving Boston Braves this afternoon and again tomorrow, while the Cardinals will go out tonight and again tomorrow against the Chicago Cubs who last night arranged the first place tie with a 7 to 2 victory.

The Dodgers loafed through an off-day while thus being boosted even with the Cards again, to make a deadlock at the finish tomorrow so strong a possibility that the Brooklyn and St. Louis clubs have ordered tickets for a three-game playoff.

No decision can be reached in the race before the final games Sunday no matter what happens, and the deadlock will be maintained if both clubs win their last two games, lose them or split them.

Each club has won 95 games and lost 57 for an exactly even percentage of .625.

In the event the clubs are forced into a playoff, the first game will be at St. Louis Tuesday, the second and third at Brooklyn Thursday and Friday and opening of the world series will be postponed from Wednesday to Sunday of next week.

As they made ready for the finish, the Cardinals still were in the worst of all current batting slumps. From Friday of last week through last night they had scored only nine runs to be last in this respect in both major leagues.

Over that same period, Brooklyn led the National league with 44.

As it turns out everything that has transpired up to now is strictly batting practice. The pennant race starts this afternoon.

Tex Hughson of the Bosox joined his teammate Dave Ferriss in the charmed circle yesterday when he staggered to his 20th victory at the expense of Washington, 5 to 4. Tex was nicked for 11 hits in his final tune-up for the post-season classic.

Cleveland's Bob Feller, who yesterday tied Rube Waddell's disputed modern record of 343 strikeouts for a season as Cleveland beat Detroit 9 to 8, will try to add to his total today by pitching a few innings against the Tigers.

Some statisticians claim Waddell actually fanned 349 batters in 1904, instead of 343. As Feller will try to go the route against Detroit again tomorrow, he has an excellent chance of finishing the season with 350 strikeouts or better, and thus definitely set a new record regardless of the Waddell dispute.

Chicago's White Sox advanced to within half a game of the fourth-place Senators by downing the St. Louis Browns twice, 7 to 3 and 8 to 3. Cincinnati clinched sixth place in the National league by blanking Pittsburgh, 8 to 0, behind Joe Beggs.

PASSES RIDDLE MADISON AGAIN

By BRUCE M'GINTY

ORRVILLE—Mansfield Madison suffered defeat in its first 1946 Northeastern Buckeye league game at the hands of a powerful aerial-minded Orrville eleven, 12 to 0, here last night.

For the second successive week, the Rams pass defense weaknesses proved costly, as Bill Codiano, Rider pass-master, threw four aerials for 52 yards. His fourth-quarter toss to Bill Wilford, who went over from the eight-yard stripe, resulted in Orrville's second TD.

In the seasonal opener, the Rams defeated New London 31 to 12, and last Friday night it again was weakness against forward passes that lead to their downfall. Oberlin scored two touchdowns on 18 and 38 yard heaves to edge the Rams 13 to 12.

Orrville kicked-off to Coach Jeff DeHaven's charges and it looked like the Rams were off to a touchdown immediately. Herbie Eldridge took Codiano's kick on the Madison five yard stripe and returned to the 19.

Before surrendering the ball on downs Madison made five first downs on a 79 yard march down the field. This scoring threat was climaxed by Eldridge's 16-yard off-tackle jaunt. Here the Rider's dug in and held DeHaven's men for no gain.

Starting from their own 40, Orrville, with Codiano carrying the pigskin seven out of 10 times, drove 60 yards for their first score. Codiano sliced off tackle for the six-points.

It was a hard fought ball game all the way, and numerous times both Madison players and Orrville men were helped off the field with minor injuries. Captain Jack Cleckner received a badly bruised arm in the closing minutes of the game.

Orrville's second touchdown drive came in the last quarter with Codiano doing most of the running and passing again. This time the Rider's went from their own 49 into pay-dirt.

At half time both Madison's band and the youthful Orrville musicians added much color to the atmosphere when they paraded on the field and formed different formations and played each others school songs while forming the "O" for Orrville and the "M" for Madison.

RAMPAGING TYGERS WIN, 55-2

Blue Streaks Humbled; Frisbee's Toe Speaks

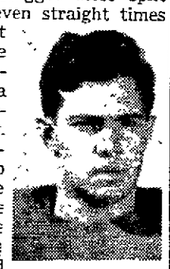
By FRED THARP, News-Journal Sports Editor.

Mansfield Tygers put a power-laden ground attack on display at Stadium field last night to humble the Sandusky Blue Streaks, 55 to 2, before a crowd estimated at 6,600.

In handing the Streaks their worst football beating in history, the Tygers' ferocious blocking and tackling was just too much for the hapless Sandusky eleven. It was the third straight victory for the Bengal huskies and made for sweet revenge. In '45 Sandusky stopped a two-game Mansfield win streak, 15 to 6.

Coach Paul Snyder's entire gridiron cast entered into the spirit of things but it was Ross Frisbee, chunky blocking back, who could be singled out for plaudits. Frisbee's crisp bone-crushing blocking paved the way for six of the Tyger TD's.

And his educated toe spoke authoritatively. Rugged Ross split the uprights seven straight times but did not get a chance at the eighth conversion when a pass from center went awry.



FRISBEE

In appreciation for a job well done, the Tygers gave Frisbee a nice bit of blocking and the big lad bulled over for the Bengals' sixth touchdown in the fourth stanza.

Bill McKee and Kenny Horvath rotated in the driver's seat of the ground-eating Tyger machine. McKee, century track ace, went into action after Ralph Majors limped from the field at the start of the second quarter and the blond bullet streaked into pay dirt three times.

Horvath ran his touchdown total to six for the season as he picked up the Bengals' second and third counters. A pile-driving fullback, Horvath was the game's leading ground gainer with 150 yards in 12 tries, for an average of 12½ yards an excursion. McKee picked up 124 yards on 12 trips.

Sandusky's first 1946 points came late in the fourth quarter after Snyder's regulars returned to action. The Tygers' penalty bugaboo set the stage for the automatic safety. A 15-yard penalty gave Sandusky a first down on the 30-yard stripe but the Streaks fumbled and Mansfield recovered on the 35.

An in-motion infraction moved the ball back to the 30 but Horvath sprinted for ten yards. Two straight 15-yard penalties shoved the Bengals back to the one-yard stripe, second down and 38. Cline's pass was knocked down in the end zone and the Streaks were the possessors of two points.

Sandusky showed strength in going for a first down the first time it got the ball, but Dave Wentz stopped the momentary threat by intercepting a Bruce Alexander aerial. Mansfield immediately fumbled and Sandusky took over on the 25. The Streaks connected for two more first downs but the drive ended when Majors grabbed an Alexander pass on the 40 and returned to the 47.

Horvath made three and then Cline passed to Majors for nine. Majors took a lateral from Cline for 21 yards and Horvath skirted right end for 13 more to the seven. The Tygers fumbled on the next play, and then Majors went around end for the counter with Frisbee escorting him all the way.

Mansfield gained possession of the ball ten times and annexed eight TD's. The first period fumble and the sequence of plays that led up to the safety were the only times the Snydermen did not drive for scores.

Horvath notched his first marker early in the second quarter when he piled over center, cut to right in the secondary and raced 40 yards past the bewildered Streaks. Sandusky fumbled the following kick-off and Horvath recovered on the 12. He picked up four yards and then bulled over center for the counter.

McKee got his first score in the second heat to climax a 39-yard march. The bullet swept around left-end, shook loose from one tackler to score from the 14. He tallied twice in the third quarter on runs of 10 and 32 yards.

Frisbee's marker came on the second play of the last quarter while mid-way in the period Sophomore Harry Osbun capped a 40-yard march by going over from the one-yard stripe.

Last Period TD's Give Shelby 14 to 0 Victory Over Galion

GALION—Two breaks of the game gave the Shelby high Whippets a 14 to 0 Northern Ohio league victory over the Galion Tigers here last night before a crowd of 6,500. It was the first Galion home game of the year and the second largest crowd ever to see a grid encounter at Heise park.

The game was a thriller, with all scoring made in the last four minutes of the game, with each making nine first downs.

With four minutes to go, from the five-yard line, a flat, wide pass was made from Reed to Kaiser for the touchdown. Two minutes later, from Galion's 39-yard line, Jones went through tackle and tossed a lateral pass to Fackler who went racing 45 yards for the touchdown. Sixty-one yards in all were run for this touchdown.

Jones made the two points by place kicking after the touchdowns.

Indians Scalp Danville, 32-18

MT. GILEAD—Mt. Gilead's Indians scalped an impotent Danville eleven 32 to 18, here last night.

The Campbell brothers were the Indians' outstanding stars as they were responsible for 20 of the 32 points. Nelson scored one TD and threw a 40-yard aerial to Gay Klingle for another six-pointer. Pete returned a Danville punt 60 yards for his score, and converted two extra points.

Dave McCarty, and Jesse White scored the other two TD's for Mt. Gilead. Dick McClain scored Danville's first six points in the second quarter on a center plunge from the three. McClain pitched two aerials against the Indians' scrubs late in the game, to LeRoy Woodman who scored on both completions.

Zale Brings One Up From Floor To Kayo Graziano In Sixth

NEW YORK—(AP)—Tony Zale of Gary, Ind., still is the middleweight fighting champion, even though they had to prop the old gaffer up and lead him around very carefully as he waved to the audience after his knockout of Rocky Graziano last night in Yankee stadium.

Tony, the victor, looked like a man who had been in hand-to-hand combat with a buzzsaw.

Up to the instant that Tony, a tired 32-year-old, landed the left hook that deposited Graziano for the count of 10 midway of the sixth round, most of the crowd banked in the Yankee ballyard would have bet their chance at a sirloin that the years were ready to take their toll and that the 160-pound crown was about to change hands.

Graziano, the rough, tough, right-hand-crazy kid from New York's east side, had won three of the first five rounds. Zale looked spent as they came together at the start of the sixth.

And then, suddenly, as they stood and slugged, with Graziano's multitude of admirers yelling for the 24-year-old sensation to finish it Zale brought up what must have been about the last shot in his locker. It connected with Rocky's jaw, and Rocky hit the floor like a ton of brick.

As Referee Ruby Goldstein picked up the count, Rocky rose from the canvas and seemed to hunch himself, keeping one knee on the floor. At the count of "10" Rocky suddenly jumped up. Goldstein grabbed and wrestled him back to his corner, and it was all over. The time was 1:43 of the sixth round.

A total of 39,827 paid their way into the bout and left a gross of $342,497.

from the tyger lair

By EL TIGRE

STAR OF THE WEEK: Converting nine in a row, seven against hapless Sandusky last night, one in the Cleveland East encounter, and another against Marion, we give you Ross Frisbee, blocking and kicking Tyger quarterback deluxe. Scored a TD against the Blue Streaks, too.

THE SCORE: Mansfield, 55; Cline, 2. That's the way Ollie, who tossed the ill-fated aerial, put it in the dressing room following the game. The safety, by way of explanation via Referee Lars Wagner, was — "forward pass thrown from and incomplete in the end zone. The ball received its forward impetus there— so two points for Sandusky."

* * *

Next week it's Portsmouth, a 175-mile trek. The team will stay overnight—that is, it will providing hotel accommodations can be secured, said Head Coach Paul Snyder.

* * *

The gray and blue clad 90-piece Blue Streak band provided something new in formations—a closing and opening umbrella, while playing, "It Ain't Gonna Rain No More," and "Singing in the Rain." A right snappy outfit, though we'll string along with those Mansfield majorettes.

* * *

* * *

PRESS BOX PERCEPTIONS—Mansfield baseballers LEW SNAVELY and JAKE GAUBATZ, along with Tyger trackmen DAVE MOYSI and PHIL WOLLARD, viewing their last game prior to leaving for Marine Corps physical exams in Cleveland Monday. . . . Dad's of the Tyger football men saluted by the band and receiving roses. . . . And 200 sandwiches for members of both teams—with milk, furnished after the game by the Tyger club. . . . In attendance was FRITZ HOWELL, Cleveland Associated Press bureau manager and one-time Ohio AP sports editor. . . . Chinning with his buddy and bowling partner, Columbus Dispatch sports writer PAUL WALKER who officiated as umpire. . . . They'll bowl together in doubles at the ABC in Los Angeles come spring. . . . Missing were Assistant Coaches VERN HOFFMAN, FRED STAUB and JIMMY LYMPER—officially in Springfield to scout both Portsmouth and Springfield, and LYMPER today goes to Toledo for the Toledo Waite-De Vilbiss contest. . . . N-J photographer GEORGE PETROVIC being "shooed" off the playing field by Head Linesman GEORGE BURKETT. . . . And lest you forget, Kiddies, Portsmouth is rated No. 3 and Toledo Waite No. 2 in Ohio high school football circles. . . . Need we say more?

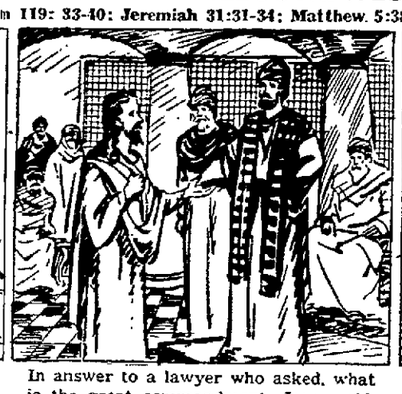
ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

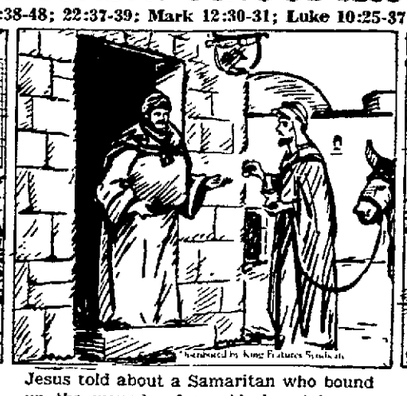
Jesus and the Law of Love — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Exodus 20:3-17; Psalm 119: 33-40; Jeremiah 31:31-34; Matthew 5:38-48; 22:37-39; Mark 12:30-31; Luke 10:25-37; Romans 8:2-4; Galatians 5:13-24.

"Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbour and hate thine enemy But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you."



In answer to a lawyer who asked, what is the great commandment, Jesus said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God which is the first and great commandment. The second is like unto it, Thou shalt love they neighbour as thyself."



Jesus told about a Samaritan who bound up the wounds of a robbed and beaten man after a priest and a Levite had passed him by; took him to an inn, gave the inn-keeper money, and told him to take care of the wounded man.

"Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbor to him, who fell among thieves?" Jesus asked. He said, "He that showed mercy on him." Jesus said, "Go and do thou likewise."

Crawford Names Fairgrounds Group

RESTORATION IS PLANNED BY OFFICIALS

Grounds Used By Army During War Will Be Renovated With U. S. Funds.

BUCYRUS — Responsibility for restoration of the Crawford county fairgrounds for county fair purposes after being used as an army training site for four years was placed in the hands of a seven-man planning committee at a recent meeting of the county agricultural society.

The newly named planning group, to cooperate with the county commissioners, was scheduled to make a survey of the fairgrounds yesterday afternoon. Following the survey a contractor is to be contacted regarding the procedures necessary for construction of a new race track.

Planning a wider track, the commissioners will ask for bids on the proposed improvements, officials said yesterday. Adequate facilities for the junor fair and other features are also contemplated.

The fair board, and county commissioners will cooperate in restoring the fairgrounds, using funds received from the federal government for the ground's use as an army training camp. The funds must be administered by the commissioners, according to a ruling by Attorney General Hugh Jenkins.

The committee includes the four members of the fair board's executive board, Walter J. Michael, president; C. A. Songer, vice president; M. E. Crall, treasurer, and Russell Miller, secretary; also Fred Hildebrand, Clark Acherman and Irvin Briegle.

AVC Chapter Approves County Council.

Mansfield's chapter of the American Veterans' Committee favors establishment of a Richland county veterans' council to present a united front of all veterans' organizations on matters of importance.

Delegates M. A. Fulkerson and Robert Dutreck have been chosen to represent the chapter at a meeting October 3, at which time all veterans organizations are to have decided whether or not they favor the council.

The chapter also adopted a resolution favoring the raising of subsistence for on-the-job training from $200 for married veterans to $275 and from $175 for single veterans to $250. This resolution is to be placed before the AVC state convention in Columbus October 18 to 20.

In still another resolution, the AVC favored publication of all the housing data obtained by the chapter's housing committee, of which Michael Mitrovitch was named chairman.

Lippmann — Today and Tomorrow

IF THE ISSUE before us were whether to oppose Soviet expansion or to appease it and retreat and surrender, the problem of our foreign policy would at least be easy to understand and simple to decide. In so far as the Wallace-Truman-Byrnes affair has made it seem as if this were the issue, it has been a red herring across the track.

For the grave and difficult question is not whether to oppose the Soviet expansion in Europe and Asia but how the United States can best do this effectively.

We do not yet have a satisfactory answer to that question, and in spite of what purport to be authoritative interpretations by correspondents who have recently been in Paris talking to Mr. Byrnes and his staff, American policy is not settled but is still tentative and in the making.

American policy is necessarily as yet unsettled because the situation to which it has to be addressed is so unstable and so changing that no government, our own, the British, the Russian, is able to judge it finally.

* * *

The proof that American foreign policy is not settled but is still in the making lies in the fact that our own chiefs of staff, the war, navy and state departments, have been as yet unable to agree on the character and composition of our military establishment.

* * *

Yet if Mr. Byrnes knew clearly how, when, where, and with what measures, he was going to implement the decision to oppose Soviet expansion, our military policy would not be so unsettled. Therefore, I contend that those who profess to be interpreting Mr. Byrnes, and are saying that he has decided and shaped a fixed and general policy, are obscuring the problem and are interfering with the search for the solution.

This policy, as interpreted by Mr. Alsop from Paris and as advocated by Mr. Bullitt in his book, is that the United States should unite the non-Soviet world as a great coalition, and should support and strengthen it.

If this is the policy, and it is by no means settled that it is going to be or that it can be, it is a bad policy. I do not say this because it worries me that Moscow will denounce it as a policy of capitalistic encirclement. I have no objections to the encirclement of an expanding empire.

The policy is a bad one for quite different reasons. It is bad because it cannot unite, will in fact disunite, is in fact disuniting, the non-Soviet world. For the non-Soviet world is not all of it free, nor all of it democratic, nor all of it capitalist, and even in that part of the non-Soviet world which is ideologically nearest to us, our conceptions of freedom, democracy, and capitalism are sharply challenged

If the United States attempts to lead an ideological crusade for our way of life, it will foment internal divisions in western Europe, civil war in eastern Europe, and increasingly it will find western Europe including Britain drawing away from us. Indeed, this is already happening.

Thus, the policy of an anti-Soviet coalition is built on quicksand.

But the worst part of this policy is that it is, as its sponsors admit, good only for a few years. Both Mr. Bullitt and Mr. Alsop tell us that the policy they advocate will work only as long as the Russians do not have atomic weapons. But a stop-gap is not enough.

Is it not the essence of our task to reach a settlement with the Soviets before the dreaded day arrives when they have, in addition to their tremendous army, atomic weapons as well? How can anyone be satisfied with a policy which is to wait, grimly and angrily, until the Russians have caught up with us in the race of atomic armaments?

Stalin's statement the other day shows that he is quite well informed about this so-called policy, and that he has taken its measure. Speaking of the atomic bombs, he remarked that "they cannot decide the outcome of war."

He meant, of course, war against the Soviet Union, first, because space is a considerable defense against bombs, so that in a big country it would be necessary to invade it in order to conquer it; second, the Red army moving into Europe could not be dealt with by annihilating the cities of Europe. For if our policy is to unite Europe against Russia, we cannot annihilate Europe in order to defeat Russia.

* * *

Stalin said also that there were two "remedies," of course from the Soviet point of view. The first is to end our monopoly by getting the bomb, and the second is to forbid the use of the bomb when both sides have the bomb.

* * *

Stalin's confidence that Russia will have time to get the bomb does not rest, of course, on the solemn assurance that no one is thinking of a "preventive war." He knows that lots of people have thought of it. But the more they thought of it, the less they thought of it. Stalin knows that too. His confidence rests on the military fact outlined above—that, with the Red army deep into the continent, Europe is a hostage in Russian hands which excludes our considering a preventive war. Therefore, he will probably seek, and will be able to obtain, the breathing spell which his statement foreshadows.

The coalition policy, as portrayed to the world in the writings of Mr. Bullitt and Mr. Alsop, has no means of dealing with this situation. It is a simple thing to frustrate it by Russia's doing what Stalin's statement indicates she will probably do—that is, by taking a breathing spell. The policy calls for a defensive coalition which is to wait defensively until Russia has the atomic bomb.

Stalin's policy is to wait, too, until Russia has the atomic bomb When she has it, the defensive coalition, if it could be formed, would fall apart because Britain, France, and western Europe cannot let themselves be made the battlefields of an atomic war.

The alternative policy, which I have discussed in previous articles, is not to organize a coalition and ideological crusade, and not to get entangled and dispersed all over the globe, but to force the Russians to negotiate a settlement by concentrating our military effort in the eastern Mediterranean and our political effort upon the consolidation of western Europe.

REPORT PRICES OF REAL ESTATE TENDING TO DIP

Dealers Note Greater Resistance Among Homeseekers In City.

The top may have been reached—or passed—in Mansfield real estate prices, dealers indicated today.

Realtors noted a slackening in the demand for homes with a trend reported to be nationwide.

The buyer resistance to high prices has caused a slowdown in transactions, the dealers said, commenting on an Associated Press survey which noted a similar trend in 13 major U. S. cities.

* * *

More Argumentative.

"Prospective buyers have become more argumentative about prices than they were a few months ago," said J. H. Mayberry, secretary of the Mansfield Real Estate Board. "This may indicate a dip in the market. At any rate, they're just using good common sense."

Declaring that prices on older properties are still too high, Charles R. Callihan, president of the local real estate board, said, "There has been considerably less inquiries about homes in the past two weeks.

"The demand is slackening up. People are beginning to quit outbidding each other for homes," Callihan added.

* * *

Market Stabilized.

"Real estate has become stabilized in the past two months," A. B. Reese said. "Instead of 25 buyers for a home which we had a few months ago, we now have eight or nine buyers."

Asserting that older properties are not moving as fast as they were, Michael Hallabrin, sr., local real estate broker, expressed the opinion that "some people are waiting until prices drop on property."

Despite the reports of dealers, County Recorder D. D. Orewiler said his office had experienced no noticeable decrease in real estate transfers.

"In August 507 deeds were filed and to date in September, with still one day to go, there have been 441 deeds filed. Although I haven't checked the exact figures, I think there have been slightly more transfers in the past month than there were six months or a year ago," Orewiler said.

Woman Slugged and Robbed; Prowlers Abuse Two Others

Another ominous warning was issued today to Mansfield women to stay off of the streets alone at night. It came as the result of the slugging of one woman, a man's pursuit of another, and a purse snatched from a third last night.

The woman slugged resides on Harker street. Police were told she was attacked and robbed in the alley near her home.

The woman told officers she had visited a north end night club with some friends and left alone for home about 10:20 p. m. She said that she became aware of a stranger following her soon after she left the night club.

It was 2:15 a. m. when she managed to reach the front door of her home and call her husband.

Together they searched the alley and found only a handkerchief and keys, they told police.

* * *

Demands Money.

She said she asked the man what he wanted and he demanded money. When she was about 100 feet from her home, she said, the man must have hit her. When she regained consciousness she had a bump on her head and her purse was missing.

* * *

Police also were investigating a report of a girl being pursued by a colored man on Orange street last night. Officers said the girl escaped by running into a residence.

Another woman reported her purse snatched on South Foster street last night. She told officers that she lost $4.50 in cash, her social security card and gloves.

Expressing concern at reports of the three incidents, Chief of Police Meade K. Bates again urged women to stay off the streets alone at night and, if they noticed anyone suspicious, to call police at once.

PUTS PRESSURE ON YUGOSLAVIA

Slavs Face Loss of Italian Treaty Privileges.

PARIS — (AP) — A peace conference commission adopted today an American proposal to bar Yugoslavia from the privileges of a signatory to the Italian treaty if she persisted in her announced refusal to sign the pact.

The Italian political and territorial commission adopted the "French line" as the boundary between Italy and Yugoslavia, and Marshal Tito's delegation promptly announced Yugoslavia would "not sign the peace treaty with Italy nor withdraw her army from northwestern Istria."

A Yugoslav proposal to turn the whole boundary question back to the foreign ministers was voted down, and the United States quickly proposed the new amendment, stating that the terms of the treaty should "not benefit any state mentioned in the preamble as allied and associated powers unless such state becomes a signatory of the treaty."

A Yugoslav delegate vigorously attacked the American proposal as "a threat and an attempt to intimidate Yugoslavia."

"Yugoslavia has shown by its four years of fighting it will not yield to any intimidation," the delegate said.

The formal Yugoslav declaration followed a sharp debate between U. S. Senator Tom Connally and Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky, with the latter supporting a Yugoslav demand that any preliminary agreement of the foreign ministers council regarding the boundary should be approved by Yugoslavia.

FIND 8 BODIES

14 Still Missing In Wake of San Antonio Flood.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(U.P.)—Eight persons were known dead today in a flood that turned the sleepy San Antonio river into a swirling torrent that left hundreds homeless, many injured and property damage estimated at $5,000,000.

Eight bodies had been recovered, and Sheriff Owen Kilday said 14 persons had been reported missing. Of these, he said, four were military police who "almost certainly" drowned.

Hundreds of persons still clung to rooftops and trees awaiting rescue today 36 hours after the flash flood swept this historic old city. Countless others had fled to higher ground to escape the rising waters.

games, there is still plenty of room for interested pupils, school officials contend.

However, junior high school and grade school seating is still a problem, but then so is the adult seating arrangement. South bleachers are reserved for the other students.

As one school official put it, "there will be plenty of griping about the seating situation until we get a stadium big enough to accommodate all fans, whether they are students or adults."

And, as a Tyger sophomore stated, "the idea of the students giving up choice seats to help finance the new stadium is a good one, but they are not doing so 'hot' on the struction of the stadium. Both sides of the stadium will be needed to ease the situation and only one is being built."

PROCLAMATION LENDS SUPPORT TO OBSERVANCE

Pastor to Request Aid of Homes and Schools In Youth Training.

A week long observance of national religious education week, sponsored jointly by the citizenship committee and a committee association, will open in local churches tomorrow.

Announcement of the observance was made today by Rev. Charles Sheriff, chairman of the citizenship committee, and Rev. Floyd Eckert of the Ministerial association.

Emphasis was given to their plans by a proclamation by Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, under whose supervision the citizenship committee functions.

While no particular program has been devised, Rev. Sheriff said that announcements will be made from church pulpits Sunday requesting that religious, moral and good citizenship training be given particular emphasis in homes, churches and schools throughout the week.

Other members of the citizenship committee, formed to work to curb juvenile delinquency, include Don Cram of the YMCA; Ralph Hughes, American Legion; Mrs. A. C. Butterfield, Women's clubs; Edwin Fensch, schools; Mrs. Clark Brook, mothers clubs; and C. C. Kindt, radio.

GREEKS CHEER KING'S RETURN

Thousands Stage Tumultuous Welcome In Athens.

ATHENS —(AP)— Hundreds of thousands of cheering Greeks lined the streets of Athens today in a tumultuous welcome to King George II of the Hellenes, returning to his throne after five years of wartime exile.

Fighters and bombers roared overhead as the royal party made its triumphal entry into the capital which was bathed in brilliant sunlight. The solemn monarch rode in an open car.

The twice-exiled king, who arrived last night from England, landed at the quay at Faleron bay at 10 a. m. A slow, four-mile procession took him past the masses in the heart of the city to the magnificent Greek cathedral, where Archbishop Damaskinos, now relinquishing his duties as regent, conducted a solemn te deum service.

Attending the service were members of the dominant royalist party's opposition, including former premiers George Papandreou, Panayotis Kanellopoulos and Sophocles Venizelos.

The thousands of police and gendarmes who guarded the monarch's route had difficulty restraining the crowds, particularly in historic Constitution Square, just in front of the parliament building and facing the unknown soldier's tomb. The square was so jammed that it was impossible to move.
